BOOSTING THE HOME TOWN

Quite often we get good sound advice to the effect that we ought so far as possible to buy goods made in America. It is the theory of the protective tariff advocates that when American goods are bought and consumed the money goes to keeping American workers employed and American capital active.

And if it is true, as it undoubtedly is, that we ought to favor American goods wherever possible, it is also true that we ought in the same measure favor the goods which are manufactured and sold in our home community. For just as we are in favor of building up American industries as a whole, we should strive for the progress and prosperity of the town or city in which we live.

It is a good rule, therefore, to patronize the business men of our own community and to purchase so far as possible goods manufactured in the home community. A great many American cities feature this home consumption campaign. They ask the people to buy from local merchants, and they ask the merchants to push, so far as possible, the goods manufactured at home. And communities which feature this patriotic rule are always numbered among the most progressive in the whole country. Their business slumps are few and far between and they are often prosperous and progressive when communities, with less civic consciousness are floundering in the slough of depression.

After all, it is the community in which we live that shapes our character and the characters of our children. If the community is clean, progressive, with a fine sense of civic pride, and with good local institutions, we are apt to be happy and progressive ourselves. And to form such a community we must keep the civic consciousness alive, and, as far as possible, keep our money at home for local development.

LESSON IN HOME DRESSMAKING

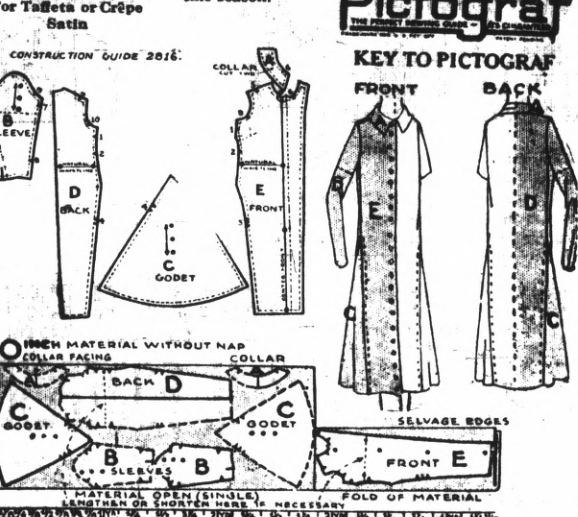

Black Crêpe Satin or Navy Blue Taffeta Sponsors a Charming Straightline Frock.

THE one-piece frock continues to prove itself a different and buoyant mode, for it lends itself to every change of the silhouette and yet remains generally becoming. This stunning dress is featured in black crêpe satin and taffeta. The fronts are dart-fitted at the underarm seams, and at the neck the opening may be underfaced and turned to form revers, or it may be closed to the neck and finished with a simple collar. Four and one-half yards of crêpe satin or taffeta will be needed for the dress.

The buttons may be repeated on the long one-piece sleeves, if desired. To cut the dress as shown in the cutting guide, lay the front on a lengthwise fold of material, using a single width for the cutting of the back and the godets. As the guide shows, there will remain sufficient crêpe or taffeta, as the case may be, for the sleeves. Carefully indicate every notch and perforation, then prepare to put the dress together.

The underarm seam is first closed, but this is closed only above the medium perforation (D). Next sew the front edge of the godet to the front of the dress C and E, respectively, with lower edges and double notches evenly matched. Close the shoulder seam, then face; the collar and sew to the edge of the neck. Lap the right front of the dress over the left, matching lines of large perforations and finish for closing. Close seam of sleeve and sew in arm-hole, holding sleeve toward you and matching notches carefully.

A cuff may be added to the sleeve, but nothing is smarter than buttons this season.

BROKEN HEARTS OF HOLLYWOOD

BY EDWARD CLARK

Copyrighted by Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

"BROKEN HEARTS OF HOLLYWOOD" with Louise Dresser in a Warner picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Betsy Terrilliger and Hal Crane, in Hollywood as prize winners of newspaper contests for movie trophies, are dismal failures in their attempts at screen acting. Both timers see 2 mysterious reasons for their failure. Betsy, who cannot remember Marshall, reputed to be responsible for many of the "broken hearts of Hollywood," is attentive to Betsy, arousing Hal's jealous anger. Grabbing around the Studios as extras they meet disheartening experiences. Hal secretly supports Betsy. Then Hal is seriously hurt in an accident, and Betsy bravely fights to support both.

The story of Hal's plight and Betsy's brave struggle went the giddy rounds of the casting offices, too; and because there are no more sentimental or soft-hearted people in the world, under the ego, than those whose profession it is to entertain the rest of the world, more than one bit was thrown her way which by all considerations of strict business should have gone to another and more capable extra.

But even the friendly offices of a chum and the concessions of sentiment cannot avail beyond certain bounds of practicality. The returns from day to day jobbing were not enough to support herself decently, let alone a sick man and the expenses and care of medicine. Nearly everything Betsy earned went to doctor and drug store. Mrs. Pruett indicated a willingness to extend some credit, although Betsy knew that she could not expect this to be carried too far.

What with paying his own and Betsy's board, and making "loans" to her besides, Hal had not saved much out of even his combined earnings. But on the other hand, things he had mentioned to Betsy were:

"There's about forty dollars there in my top bureau drawer, sweet-heart—tucked in my safety razor case. Use them as far as they'll go, and after that—He shrugged in a way that wrenched Betsy's heart.

"After that—everything will be all right, I know. Don't worry, dear boy. I'll get something—good. I know it. Everyone is trying to help me."

Hal had just smiled and petted her hand and closed his eyes. Betsy kept after Marshall to redeem his promise to help her secure small parts. Marshall vowed that he was doing all he could, but nothing came of his vague talk; and Betsy's confidence in him was shaken a bit, although he pled her with constant assurances of his devoted friendship for her and for Hal.

"I'd like to—err—advance you a little loan," he said one day, "only business has been breaking rotten for me lately."

"Thanks ever so much, but don't think of it," said Betsy, quite touched—in her unsophisticated way.

"Just as soon as I get a break I'm going to help you, no matter what you say," he declared expansively.

After that there were days and days of bleak want. For all Betsy's courage her hopes began to wane. It was not herself she was thinking of now, but the terror of watching Hal, who, after a promising career, began to fall little by little. Said the doctor gravely to Betsy one afternoon:

"I'm afraid it's going to be necessary very soon to get him to a hospital—to a specialist. Otherwise—"

Betsy felt that his words had the effect of someone rubbing a piece of ice over her heart. Grimly she made the rounds next morning. In a casting office she encountered the slatty blonde who had been one of the bathing girls in Betsy's first picture.

Mrs. H. K. Martin and daughter Jane, of Mira Vista have departed for Sunnydale where they will spend their vacation.

P. T. A. WORD IS EDUCATIONAL SAYS SPEAKER

That the Parent-Teacher movement is educational in its significance and is recognized as such, is the keynote of the message brought back from the National Convention by Mrs. W. J. Hayes, president of the Second District, California Congress of Parents and Teachers, according to her report given at the final meeting of the District Executive Board. The convention was held in Atlanta, Georgia, and many educators of national repute were listed among the speakers, including Miss Mary McKimmon of Massachusetts, president of the National Education Association.

Mrs. A. H. Reeve, national president of the congress of Parents and Teachers, in enlarging on the general theme of the convention, "The Educational Significance of the Parent-Teacher Movement," drew attention to the fact that many universities were now including courses on Parent-Teacher work. By systematized field work associations are being established in the most remote districts of the United States. Inquiries from foreign countries and future plans indicate that the movement will ultimately become world-wide.

Under the slogan, "The Summer Round-up," a project engaging the attention of P. T. A. workers nationally at the present time is the preparation of the pre-school age child for school. To arouse the interest of parents that each child reaching school age will enter one hundred per cent fit is the goal of the organization.

Activities along the lines of adult education, elimination of illiteracy and child labor, safety education, and parental education and character training will be renewed on the beginning of the school year.

Salvation Army Fund Drive is to Start Here Soon

The Annual Finance Campaign of the Salvation Army will be held soon in Contra Costa County and preparations are now being made to have workers in all sections of the county by the time the campaign opens. The Salvation Army is asking the citizens of Contra Costa County to give the sum of $5,500 to its work this year.

According to the budget, which has been prepared, the money is needed as follows:

County Corps fund, $3200.00; State fund, $425.00; Self Denial fund, $400.00; Home Service and Emergency Relief (including campaign costs) $825.00; Rescue Home, Orphanage, Training of Officers for Field, etc., $650.00; total $5500.00.

The County Citizens' Advisory committee is made up of the following: Deputy District Attorney, T. H. Del-up, chairman; Larkin J. Younce, treasurer; E. M. Downer, associate treasurer; E. J. Garrard, Zeb Knott, A. C. Faris, Harry A. Barnes, N. A. Becker, Mayor C. H. Hayden of Martinez and Roy Davis.

Many of the industrial organizations in the county have already evinced their support of the cause by organizing teams to solicit their employees. All donations can be given to official representatives of the drive, bearing credentials from the County Salvation Army Office, Adjutant Fred Hunter, or sent direct to the chairman, T. H. Del-up, Campaign Headquarters, Mercantile Trust company, Bldg., Richmond, California.

CHILDREN PRESENT PROGRAM AT D.V.B.S. COMMENCEMENT HELD AT FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

The First Presbyterian church was packed to overflowing last night when commencement exercises closing the Daily Vacation Bible School were held.

The program in which each of the various classes took part was enjoyed by the parents who were present for the celebration. The school has been conducted daily since the close of the school term and has been well attended. Children of all ages entered the various groups to study sections of the Bible.

Devotionals and songs opened the program last night. The children showing the training received at the school swelled their voices in singing hymns and shouting the praises of the school.

The Rally of King Rehoboth, dramatized and the Summer Xmas tree made up of children were two of the featured numbers presented.

The exercises closed with benediction. In the Sunday school room, the work of the various classes was on display. There were the posters, the books of the Bible, the twelve Apostles and other work made in conjunction with the sections studied. Then there were the scrapbooks, made in cut-outs by the children showing a complete home in all its details.

One of the particularly interesting displays was an exhibit of comforters and aprons with needlework done by the children. These are to be sent to the Indian missions in Arizona and the Chinese home in Oakland.

There were four villages constructed by the children in their study. The first showed a street scene in Palestine with the flat-roofed houses lining the narrow street and palm trees springing up between the houses.

The African village with its native houses, dogs-shaped, displayed the life of the natives. An Indian village with tepees clustered together on a plain gave a faithful reproduction of life among the western Indians.

The fourth village was that of Japan. Gateways, houses and domestic equipment showed life among the Japanese. There was a large relief map of Palestine forming a display in itself.

One section of a large table was devoted entirely to spoils and rolls of cloth, sheep, cats and dogs. All were made by the children attending the classes.

The success of the Daily Vacation School of the First Presbyterian church was shown by the appreciation displayed by the parents of the children last night.

Tomorrow afternoon, this school together with the ones of Stege and East Richmond will hold a picnic in East Shore Park. Games and sports will be enjoyed and a picnic lunch will be served in the open. A. W. Mueller, director of the Y. M. C. A., has been secured to direct the games.

Those present included: June Kneeland, Beronice Kneeland, Hejen Dresal, Romaine Van De Venter, Jeanne Stallard, Joyce Stallard, Betty Glasby, Roy Kneeland and Elizabeth Pfeil.

Mrs. Bengley was assisted by Mrs. Jessie Kneeland, Mrs. Etta Kneeland, Mrs. Joella Bonham, Messrs. George Bengley and Don Kneeland.

Kensington Wins Fight Against Entry of Grocery

The residents of the Kensington park district fighting to retain that district as an exclusive residential district won a court fight yesterday when Superior Judge H. V. Alvarado at Martinez granted an injunction preventing George W. Ellison from continuing the building of a grocery store in that district.

The suit was instituted last week by residents of the Kensington district who declared that the construction of a grocery store was a direct violation of Ellison's deed to the property which restricted use of property to residential purposes and specified that any homes constructed must be of a minimum value of $3,000.

The Picturesque Large Hat Leads The Vogue For Summer Millinery

Sport Hats of Ballbunt and Bangkoks Vie With Floppy Raffias

Now that the large hat is definitely established in fashionable circles, the wise woman will take advantage of the flattering lines by choosing the proper chaparral for her type. We all know that all types of women cannot wear large hats, but what many of us do not know is that even the one to whom the picturesque lines of a large hat is most becoming cannot wear ALL styles of large hats. Madame may look decidedly chic in a large chaparral wide at the sides and narrow in front and back, yet perfectly atrocious in a round brimmed, droopy hat that is so picturesque on another. How to buy the large hat determines whether one is chic or just a follower of fashion.

Consider Size First

The size of the hat is the first thing to consider. You can get the effect without having the brim too wide for your face. A woman with a small face must be content with a medium sized brim, but by bending the shape so that one side touches her left shoulder she can achieve a stunning effect and still be becomingly hatted.

Also remember that not every gown is suitable with a large hat. If your frock is scanty—the skirt short and the sleeves shorter—your extremely large hat looks ridiculous. It always brings up the old question "where is the hat going with the girl?" So for this reason design your frock so that the skirts are fairly long and full and allow the sleeves to be loose and flowing.

AVOID HEAVY TRIMMING

Avoid heavy trimming on a big hat. When the shape is so large, elaborate trimming gives you a too heavy look. A flower or two or a feather or even just a plain band is all that the large hat needs.

This season the large smart hat of ballbunt and bangkok in all the high shades is favored for general wear, though the dressier type of large hat has an important place in the summer wardrobe. The large black milan, which was introduced in early spring, is almost necessary in every wardrobe, for it is most becoming as well as useful with any color frock. These popular milans are also used in colors to match

Large drooping hats of horsehair and floppy Summer hats of Raffia straw are being shown for afternoon wear. For country and party wear, this type of hat is most becoming, since it goes so well with summery flowered chiffon frocks and dainty Summer clothes.

Marion Davies, whose dainty, pearly beauty is peculiarly suited to large picturesque hats, is shown above in a very attractive corn colored hat of horsehair, bordered with net, which she wears in "The Red Mill," her latest production. A narrow band of velvet ribbon separating the net from the hat is its only trimming. The hat beneath is of black satin.

Duce's Trip To Africa Stirs France To Action

BY FRANK E. MASON
(By Universal Service)

PARIS, June 24.—"The Mystery of the Mediterranean" is Monsieur Pierre Milles' name for the secret maneuvers France is carrying on to protect her African domain from eventual Italian aggression. The Paris press is silent on the movements of the Mediterranean fleet. Recently a brief mention was made that the British colony in Malta had staged a friendly reception for the French fleet when it came in at that British island.

"Where did our fleet come from?" demands Monsieur Milles. "What is it doing in the Mediterranean? It's all very curious. Here is what a personal friend of mine wires me from Tunis. They held naval maneuvers at the Cape Bon, and military maneuvers are reported in the south."

"What does this signify?" Monsieur Milles demands. "am disposed to believe the military demonstrations are only for the purpose of assuring the French citizens of Tunis, and quieting the natives who were somewhat disturbed by the imperial voyage of Monsieur Mussolini to Tripoli."

I'd be tearfully sad should he croak. For he never says: "I travel on the small boats. In order to shun the crowd." Like old Henry McDowd; He merely remarks that he's broke.

COLLEGE PLAY IS ATTRACTION AT CALIFORNIA

Being the college hero for a week is all well and good, if you don't have to give reasons for being the above-mentioned hero.

But William Haines had to prove it, and there he was, tale.

Haines is playing the title role in "Brown of Harvard" coming to the California theatre today and tomorrow, and everyone knows the title role is seldom played by the villain. Haines had to do something to prove his right to the title.

The "something" has not been playing the ukelele or showing a proficiency at yodeling, but the polite game of football, and when it is played with a regular college team, it is do child's play. For we say the U. S. C. Squad die their best to put Haines into an unconscious condition, but he came out of it with only a few minor bruises.

Now before he had an opportunity to rest he was rushed to San Francisco, where he was shown two days with the University of California crew for additional scenes in the Metro-Goldwyn-May picture.

Investigation Fails To Reveal Cause Of Fire

An all day investigation was conducted by El Cerrito officials yesterday failed to reveal the cause of a fire which broke out at the Richmond Annex yesterday morning.

No indication as to the object and identity of the two owners who visited the El Cerrito fire station on San Pablo Avenue while the fire department was out fighting the fire was disclosed by the all day investigation.

Following a telephone alarm to the fire station before 2 o'clock early yesterday morning, the department went to the blazing home which is reported to be owned by A.S. Olsen. According to the fire chief W.A. Hinds there is no water in that section and the fire had made such headway that the firefighters devoted their efforts to preventing the fire from spreading because of the heavy dry grass in the vicinity.

Hinds stated that when he watched the firemen fighting the blaze and that when he looked for him later to question him regarding the blaze he was unable to find him. A search of the ruins which was started immediately after the fire had died down failed to reveal any remains that would indicate that any one had perished in the flames.

While the firemen were fighting the blaze, two prowlers entered the fire station. Finding all the doors locked, they made their way into the station by way of the apparatus room and then started prowling around the room. They knocked on the apartment of Mrs. Arthur H. Byrd, wife of the ex-owner of the fire station. When they refused to make their errand known, Mrs. Byrd refused to open the door. As soon as the men left the door Mrs. Byrd called the Richmond police department which dispatched Sergeant H.A. Messenger and Officer Thomas Flynn to the scene.

As the police car drove up to the station a large closed car, believed by the officers to be a Hudson, drove away. The officers did not connect the car or its occupants with the object of their call until they had questioned Mrs. Byrd.

Stars of "Brown Of Harvard"

William Haines and Mary Brian in a scene from "Brown of Harvard" which comes to the screen of the California today for an engagement of two days.

Man Four Square Is The Attraction At Local Theatre

"A Man Four Square," starring Buck Jones with Florence Gilbert in the leading feminine role, which opens today at the Richmond Theatre, is the first western picture that R. William Neil has ever directed. It is also the first time Mr. Neil has directed either Mr. Jones or Miss Gilbert.

Director Neil has been in motion pictures for several years, but his directorial work has always been on pictures in which military scenes have played an important part.

"A Man Four Square" is the fourth picture Mr. Neil has directed at the William Fox West Coast Studios, the first three having had Edmund Lowe in the starring roles.

Supporting Mr. Jones and Miss Gilbert in "A Man Four Square" are Harry Wood, William Lawrence, Jay Hunt, Sidney Bracey and Frank Beal.

Other features on the same program include "Home Cured," a Johnny Arthur comedy; and "Neptune's Domain," a screen novelty.

Coming Sunday, Adolphe Menjou in "A King on Main Street."

Building For Day is $12,500

Building permits issued yesterday by Acting Building Inspector A. J. Hurley amounted to $12,500.

C. J. Lambrecht secured a permit to erect a one-story cottage costing $4,000 on the south side of Garvin street between Twenty-sixth and Twenty-eighth streets. The Miner company is the builder.

John Stagnich issued a permit to build a one-story cottage and garage on the south side of Barrett avenue between Thirty-fifth and Thirty-sixth streets. J. A. Legault is the contractor for the work which will cost $3,500.

A permit was issued to Clyde C. Baker to build a one and one-half story cottage and garage costing $4,500 on the east side of Thirty-ninth street between Clinton and Solano avenues. The home will contain seven rooms.

P. Trumble secured a permit to build a two-room addition to his home on the east side of Twentieth street between Grant and Burbeck avenues. The work will cost $500.

Accompanied by her children, Floyd, Dickie and Romona, Mrs. S. Gallardo, 225 Fourth street left yesterday for Santa Cruz where they will spend the summer.

Russia Returns $58 Bolshevik Earned In U.S.

BY LAURA PATRICK
(By Universal Service)

MOSCOW, June 24.—After five years of weary waiting in the ante-rooms of officials and unwinding red tape to while away his leisure hours, Citizen Kalansky is going to have his $58 beautiful American dollars returned to him.

The pilgrimages of Citizen Kalansky made a sad story. He started out from his little home town, Zolnyoi Kurlovskoi long years ago to make his fortune in America. Years passed, and Kalansky found that the riches would come his way in the promised land, decided to return to Russia where he had heard that workers now had a better chance.

On May 8, 1921, he arrived in the land of the proletariat, with his fortune in his hand. It consisted of exactly $58.

The customs officials, intuitively feeling that these dollars had no right in Russia, took them away from the protesting Kalansky.

Now after the fifth anniversary of toil and waiting to recover them, Kalansky has been notified—"that he is about to have his $58 returned."

It is promised that the apologies of the authorities will accompany the dollars.

WANTED—Soft, clean rags at The Record Herald.

APRICOT CROP EXPECTED TO MAKE RECORD

A new high mark for this season's apricots, the first carload of apricots shipped east by the Stewart Fruit company from McIntosh station in Ygnacio Valley sold at $2.95 a crate on the Chicago market Thursday. On the same date on the New York market a carload sold for $2.87½ per crate.

The price brought in the Chicago market was occasioned by the large size, high quality and clear skin of the Ygnacio Valley fruit, according to the Chicago manager of the fruit company.

The first shipment of pears from Contra Costa county is expected to go east from McIntosh station Monday.

Touching Scene In Douglas Hospital As Evangelist And Her Mother Are Reunited

was ended, Mrs. McPherson looked happily at the men and women who pressed forward to stand about the bed.

"Oh, you dear people," she whispered.

She greeted Captain Herman Cline and Deputy District Attorney Ryan of Los Angeles with a quivering smile.

"Oh, if you knew how I've longed to see a policeman," she whispered.

Then she caught her breath and clung her arms once more about her mother in that embrace of utter joy, almost of dread that after all it might be only a dream.

"Oh, mother, mother," Mrs. McPherson is eager to talk. She wants to tell everything she can remember of what happened since that afternoon more than a month ago when she answered what she thought was a call for help—the call that always found her ready—and found it the blackest treachery and evil.

Her throat quivered with nervousness as she spoke. Her hands were restless.

"I can never forget these people," she said. "I see them in my dreams, every line of their faces every tone of their voices is seared in my memory."

In the crowd at the door, Mrs. McPherson caught sight of the writer of this story, whom she had known in the days before all this happened.

"Come here," she called. "Oh, come. I want to see you." Her arms were like bands of steel trembling but strong, around my shoulders. I could feel the quick shudders that ran through her body, the throbbing of nerve and muscle.

"Oh, my dear, aren't you glad for me?" she whispered as her lips clung in a long kiss. "It's good—so good, so wonderful."

Mrs. Kennedy stood behind the bed, her hand fast in her daughter's. Her eyes were wet with tears.

Mrs. McPherson turned her eyes to her mother with a long, long look. Her lips quivered again.

"Oh, I stood everything, every thing, until they told me my mother had collapsed," she whispered.

Joy and excitement held Mrs. McPherson up through the meeting, throughout the gentle questioning of Captain Cline and Ryan. It was not until her tired body could stand no more that she waited quietly among the flowers and the nurses sent the crowd away.

Old Furniture Exchanged for New

The United States Government tells us that proven statistics show that of each 100 men passing the age of 25, 36 are dead before they reach 65 and that of the other 64—

- | | |
|--------------------------|---------------------------|
| 1 will be wealthy | 54 will be dependent upon |
| 4 will have incomes | some relative or upon |
| 5 will have some earning | charity. |

Out of every 64 men reaching the age of 65, 54 are dependent! It is not reasonable to assume that any large percentage of them lived lives of reckless abandon or profligacy; there seems, rather, to be an intimation that disability or some other misfortune interfered with their well-laid plans.

Shoe Men In

Foot Comfort Event

Thousands of selected shoe merchants all over the United States and Canada are going to join hands in a big drive during the week of June 19 to 26 to spread a splendid foot comfort message to the millions of foot sufferers.

This was disclosed today by Mr. Barbikas of the B. & B. Shoe Store, who said his store would participate in the event, which is known as Dr. Scholl's Foot Comfort Week. He explained that he has had a special training in relieving foot troubles and in fitting footwear correctly under Dr. Wm. M. Scholl, the well-known foot authority.

Mr. Barbikas gave some interesting data about feet. He said that seven out of ten persons suffer from some form of foot trouble. It was not necessary, he also said, for anyone to wear larger size shoes in order to secure foot comfort. Any shoe, he declared, can be made an anatomical shoe by simply fitting the proper Dr. Scholl appliance in it. There need be no sacrifice of style.

People troubled with corns, callouses, bunions, flat foot, weak ankles, will have an opportunity during this week of learning how thousands of others have been benefited through the aid of Dr. Scholl's Foot Comfort Appliances.

"We are in this nation-wide movement," he said, "because it will show to our customers how needless are their foot sufferings." Dr. Scholl's appliances are thoroughly scientific. There is one for every foot trouble. Not only will they relieve pain and provide comfort, but they make shoes wear longer and keep their shape.

Mr. Barbikas said that after Foot Comfort Week you would see fewer people limping about with some sort of foot trouble.

THOUGHT AND COMMENT

We must look to the north to supply the traffic that will come to Richmond and San Francisco. If you work a hardship on this traffic, it will go on down to Oakland, as is the case now. So, how can we help that condition and leave the village class? I believe one of the most important matters to come before our city now is the opening of a main traffic artery to connect with the Southern Pacific ferry, and if Garrard Boulevard is extended in a northerly direction until it intercepts San Pablo avenue, we will have the traffic artery that is needed to divert the traffic through our city on its way to San Francisco.

If traffic is to continue as it does now in a roundabout way to hunt for the Southern Pacific ferry, rather than try it a second time, the people will go on down San Pablo avenue to Oakland, and don't lose sight of the remark made by the engineer at the hearing of the Railroad Commission—that when a line is established between San Francisco and Berkeley, the Southern Pacific would abandon the Richmond project. This is only a suggestion how, by that engineer, but a suggestion many times is a forerunner of an action, and I believe that if Richmond does not provide a traffic artery to the north, we will lose our direct communication to San Francisco, and that would be a calamity.

Knowing that you are always standing for progress, I hope you will give this some thought.

With best wishes,

Very truly yours,
HARRY W. WERNSE

Your Home is Not Fire Proof

A disastrous fire in a bay city residential district the other day consumed a fortune in securities, deeds, jewelry and irreplaceable personal belongings. A great part of the loss could have been prevented. At small expense, a fire-proof safe deposit box in the vaults of the Mercantile Trust Company of California would have saved these articles from destruction. It may be your turn next. Rent a safe deposit box today and permanently remove the risks that surround unprotected valuables.

HOW IT FEELS TO BE WORKING

By LIONEL GUEST
(Son of Lord Wimborne, who drove a locomotive during the general strike in Great Britain. Mr. Guest describes how he did it and how he felt while doing it.)

LONDON, June 23.—What does it feel like for an amateur to drive a main-line locomotive coupled to a train of eighteen carriages out of a terminus such as Liverpool Street, with its maze of tracks, points, and signals, bound for Norwich, over 115 miles of railway that he has never traversed before in his life?

Well, it makes him feel extraordinarily small and puny, and not a little frightened.

Off you start when the signal drops and the volunteer guard gives "Right away." Having breast successfully the "one-in-seventy bank" through the tunnel to Bethnal Green, and just began to breathe freely at not having stuck on the hill, one's heart is again in one's mouth at the sight at Stratford of an approaching train that one would swear was coming straight for one head-on, only to realize the next instant that it is on a different set of rails and takes a turn off apparently just in time.

Well, one gets used to it finally, and, what with keeping steam and water right, and looking out for signals and red and green flags, one has little enough time to reflect that a trusting lot of citizens are quietly riding behind a hazardous fool!

Still, by carefully following the time table, watching the mile posts and grade indicators, opening the level crossing gates—for the first few days unmanned—and stopping at all stations, one gets there in the end—an eight-hour journey to Norwich through Ipswich.

It is my firm belief, from experience as an engine driver in two strikes, that a few months would suffice to train, if necessary, a brand new staff to run the railways of this country, and if this is the case on the railways, it must be true in many other trades.

BEACON CLUB TO MEET TODAY

Beacon Chapter, O. E. S. sewing club will meet at the home of Mrs. Hilda Archibald, 558 Sixth street this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

LADIES OF G. A. R. TO HOLD WHIST

The Ladies of the G. A. R. will hold a whist party in Memorial hall on the night of Tuesday, June 29. This will be the last of a series of whists given by the society. A large comforter will be given as a grand prize. The public is invited and there will be an admission price of twenty-five cents.

VET AUXILIARY VISITS OAKLAND

A group of the members of the Auxiliary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars attended the meeting of the Astor Post Auxiliary at Oakland on Wednesday. The members from Richmond who attended included Miss Annabelle Jarvis, Mrs. Anna Jarvis, Mrs. Lilian Jones and Mrs. Gerald ne Bradley.

NEIGHBORS OF WOODCRAFT MEET

The Neighbors of Woodcraft met last night in the Woodmen hall for a short business meeting with Miss Eunice Eggert in charge. Following the meeting refreshments were served.

Local Teacher Is Given Life Certificate

Glady's N. Noble, of the Richmond Union High School, who has tendered her resignation, was the only teacher out of nine who were granted life diplomas at Martinez yesterday, by the Contra Costa Board of Education, for secondary schools.

Life diplomas for elementary schools were issued to Violet F. Rhein of Concord, Ella M. Sommers of Socrante, Genevieve de Simas of Briones Valley, Madeleine E. Brennan of Bay Point, Blanche E. Hopkins of San Pablo, Margaret Collins of Pinole, Lola D. Nason of Concord and Leatha W. Shawl of Willow Springs.

After spending two weeks in Chico and Willows Mrs. Robert Godman and her daughter Helen, 460 Tenth street have returned to their home here. While in the south Mrs. Godman attended the graduation of her niece, Miss Bernice Cummins, a former Richmond girl from the State Teachers College in Chico.

POWER COMPANY

The Gold Fish spends his life in the transparent fish bowl where anybody can watch his every move.

So the power companies live under the pitiless eye of the Railroad Commission. Every rate, every expense, every profit and every loss must be reported. These reports are open to the public, every man in the street may look them over if he cares to.

There can be no secret deals, and no hidden transactions. The daily life of a power company is as open to public view as that of the gold fish in the glass bowl.

Think of this the next time you see a fish bowl.

FACTS!

The Railroad Commission started regulating power companies in 1912.

REFINERY NINE DEFEATS ALL STANDARDS 6 TO 2

DIMOCK HOLDS LOSERS DOWN TO TWO HITS

Fourth Inning Proves Downfall For All Standards Breaking Tie Score

The Refinery team went wild in the fourth inning of last night's set-to with the All Standards and scored four runs to break the 1-1 tie score. Hitherto the teams had played even with the Refinery scoring the first run in the second inning and the All Standards coming through with one in the first of the third.

From then on the All Standards were out to make up for lost time and it looked like they would in the fifth inning when they scored another run. But the Refinery then came back and scored a run making the score 6 to 2.

Roberts was hit plenty by the Autry men, letting the boys grab nine bingles while Dimock for the Refinery shut out the Standards with two hits.

The feature of last night's game was the beautiful black eye that Elmer Hansen received. Elmer flowered out in right field for the six innings and a half and had little to do. In the third inning with Freine on third, Carson drove a beautiful fly to right. Elmer had to get on his horse to reach the ball and as he did he looked into the sun. Just about this time the ball skyrocketed down and sloughed him in the right eye. When Elmer left the park his right eye looked as if he had mingled with Harry Wills.

The fans were looking for a chance to razz some one and did most of it on Stolle behind the plate. There was no reason for this for Stolle called them fast and good.

Church Split Over Cause Of Death Of Oakland Pastor
(By Universal Service)
OAKLAND, June 24.—The congregation of Oakland Temple church founded here three years ago by Almee Semple McPherson the evangelist who was found at Douglas, Arizona, after being missing a month, was split today over the cause of the death of Rev. Charles Eugene Ross, its pastor five hours after he learned of Mrs. McPherson's reappearance.
When Mrs. McPherson was supposedly drowned the Rev. Ross led the Oakland congregation in prayers for recovery of her body. The pastor was stricken Wednesday and died a few hours later. He was 56 years old and a native of Maine, New York.
While his family attributed the heart attack to shock incurred when his automobile narrowly missed a collision yesterday some members of the congregation say joy over learning Mrs. McPherson was alive was too much for him.

WIMBLEDON (England), June 24.—America scored its first notable triumph in the Wimbledon tournament today, when Miss Elizabeth Ryan and Miss Mary K. Browne, both of California, and the ace doubles team representing the United States in the women's division, defeated Suzanne Lenglen, world champion woman tennis player, and her partner, Mlle. Vlasto, in a tumultuous three set match, 3-6, 9-7, 6-2.

The American pair were plainly the favorites with the gallery, every sensational shot made by either of the California drawing loud bursts of applause.

The Americans really won the match at the end of the second set. The French pair had taken the first set and were leading in the second, 7-6. Miss Ryan was serving, and after the score had been carried to deuce seven times finally braced, and with two well placed and severely hit deliveries took the tying game.

Howard Kinsey, who now remains as Uncle Sam's lone hope in the men's singles division, continued his parade toward the sterner rounds by an easy victory over C. Bryan of England, 6-4, 6-2, 6-4.

Henry Cochet, who is regarded by many critics as the logical title winner this year because of his two victories over Richards and his defeat of Lacoste, won a quick victory from H. K. Lester of Cambridge, 6-2, 7-5, 6-4.
Senorita de Alvarez, the Spanish champion, easily defeated Miss W. M. Houghton, 6-2, 6-0.

Police Chief Is Accused In Slush Probe

In the returns to headquarters. He admitted that every policeman in the city had been given the same instruction, though not by letter.

Senator King said to him indignantly, "Is that the only explanation you can make of this letter?"

"Yes, sir," replied Walsh. Evidently piqued by Walsh's interpretation of the letter, Senator King said to him in deliberate, measured tones:

"Did you know that you were violating not only the spirit but the letter of the law in the course you pursued, and that you ought to be removed?"

Because followers of Governor Gifford Pinchot had testified that saloons, speakeasies and gambling joints flaunted Pepper-Fisher literature and ran wide open under the eyes of the police, Walsh was grilled by the committee on the vice conditions alleged to have existed on the eve of the primaries. He drew a laugh from the crowd and a "razz" from Senator "Jim" Reed by naively explaining that he knew nothing about the location of saloons and speakeasies in the smoky city because he is "not a drinking man."

Under Reed's cross-fire of questions, he admitted that both Pepper and Fisher visited police headquarters during the campaign and said he attended fifteen or twenty Pepper-Fisher political meetings.

Practically all the police wore Pepper-Fisher badges at some time during the campaign, he admitted. Justice John W. Kohart of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court, the first witness, admitted that he supported Rep. William S. Vare for the senatorial nomination, but said he took no active part in the campaign. No attempt was made to "assess" him for a campaign contribution, he said. Thomas S. Boyle, president of the American Bank and Trust Co. of Philadelphia, the last witness, denied that the Vare campaign managers borrowed money from his bank on notes before the primaries. Boyle said he voted for Vare, but made no contribution to his campaign.

L. S. FISH TO PLAY REMELL IN S. O. PLAY

L. S. Fish entered the semi-finals of the lower half of the Standard Oil Tennis Tourney by an easy victory over H. Francis in their match played on the Point Richmond court Thursday evening. Fish and A. S. Remell will meet in the semi-finals tonight on the Point Richmond court, and although Fish is expected to win a hard fought match is predicted.

In their match played on the Point Richmond courts, Howard Nichols romped to a straight victory over Harold Johnson by scores of 6-2, 6-3, and thus meets Vern Langford Saturday at 1 P. M. on the Point Richmond courts. The victor of this match will play Allen K. Herman in the semi-finals of the upper half of the tourney. Nichols took the lead and was never in danger as Johnson could not strike his stride until the latter part of the second set, but Nichols' series of deep placement lobs kept his adversary from the net where he was the most dangerous. Johnson's erratic playing accounted for many lost points while Nichols on the other hand made sensational returns of Johnson's net placements and showed a well balanced game throughout the match.

GOLF

The British Golf players are becoming disgusted with the general golfing public of the Island. Time after time Americans have come to the Island and have defeated some of the best British players on what are considered the hardest courses in the country. With the record scores made by Hagen, Bobby Jones and others the British are becoming disgusted.

Mother Of Three Goes To Gallows For Killing Woman

(By Universal Service)

MANCHESTER, England, June 24.—A woman, the mother of three children, went to her death on the gallows here today. Mrs. Louise Calbert, 33 years old, was executed for the murder of her landlady, Mrs. Lillie Waterhouse, a spiritualist medium, last April. Robbery, the prosecution charged, was the motive.

Mrs. Calbert was the first woman executed in England since 1923 when Mrs. Edith Thompson paid the extreme penalty for the murder of her husband.

Maintaining her innocence until the eleventh hour, Mrs. Calbert, it is understood here tonight, made a confession just before the trap was sprung but at a late hour tonight officials had not made this public. One of her last requests was to see her baby son who was taken to the jail a short time before the execution.

At the time of the crime, Mrs. Calbert was living apart from her husband but when she was arrested he came to her aid. No stone was left unturned to obtain clemency and a petition bearing thousands of names was presented to the authorities in vain.

It was presented to the home secretary who refused to refer it to the King.

CATASTROPHE IS THREATENED BY CRUSH AT GATES

persons were dead had not been verified last night. Hospital authorities said that scores were brought in unconscious but all under observation had recovered.

At an early hour tonight soldiers and police were striving to break the jam. They were aided by hundreds of priests. The priests mounted railroad cars and other elevations, exhorting the crowd to take its time.

Processions were formed on the fringe of the milling thousands to divert the press of humanity in other directions. Little headway had been made at 8:30 p.m.

Three women gave birth to babies. They were rescued and removed to emergency hospitals.

WOMEN FAINT
Reports from the emergency hospitals showed that fainting women were being dragged from the outer fringe of the jam at the rate of sixty a minute. Emergency stations were filling rapidly.

Transportation officials summoned 120 physicians and 140 nurses to the scene. These are in addition to several score doctors and nurses that had been stationed at the emergency stations when they were opened.

Employees of the concessions—the stands where food and drink had been sold joined with the soldiers, police and priests in battling to break the jam. Criers were sent out to announce that food and drink was being given away free. It was hoped it would start a stampede from the outer ranks of the stifling thousands.

A million men, women and children had crowded into the grounds of St. Mary's this morning for the Eucharistic Congress. They all started to leave as soon as the benediction had been pronounced shortly before 5 o'clock this evening.

Only a few hundred had passed through the gates before the jam caught them. Those in the center could not move. Those ahead could go no farther because of the railroad tracks and waiting trains. Onward from the rear pressed the milling throng, shoving forward inch by inch. Crushing harder and harder against those in the center of the vast acres of humanity.

ST. MARY OF THE LAKE, MUNDELEIN (ILL.), June 24.—A storm broke as nearly a million men and women were kneeling in religious adoration here this afternoon before the passing of the procession of the Blessed Sacrament, the final scene in the twenty-eighth international Eucharistic Conference, a storm of thunder and lightning and of rain and hail as big as small marbles.

Eight Cardinals Leave New York On Red Special Train For Chicago's International Eucharistic Congress

This storm leaped out of the clouds in the wake of a prostrating heat, as John Cardinal Bonzano of Italy, personal representative of the Pope, was marching around a wee lake here in the heart of a fat farming country of Illinois, behind him eleven other cardinals, princes of the church, moving slow, with majestic tread.

John Cardinal Bonzano walked under a great golden canopy, bearing in his hands the jeweled vessel containing the consecrated Host, the wafer of flour and water, which, in Catholic belief, through consecration, becomes the body of Jesus Christ.

Behind the other cardinals in their red robes of state, when the storm came, were the bishops, the archbishops, the monsignors and the priests and Christian Brothers from all over the world, taking part in this last scene of the most prodigious religious spectacle the world has ever known.

Overhead the artillery of the heavens grumbled warning of the approaching storm just as the procession started. It was about half way around the wee lake when, with a preliminary flourish of lightning that slashed the black clouds above like sabre strokes, the rain came.

It fell in a torrent, quickly followed by lumpy hailstones that pelted down as they hit the ground. Most of the crowd awaiting the procession around the lake hastened for the cover of the surrounding trees. Straight and true, and unflinching, the Catholic soldiers of Christ marched on, and on, their red robes dripping water, until after a few minutes the downpour ceased, and presently they were marching again in the sunlight.

In front of the chapel of the university from which the parade started were thousands of women, including many nuns. They were soon sadly bedraggled by the rain, but as the storm rode on past over the lake, they began singing "Holy God, Praise Thy Name," their voices rising in a sort of paean of thanksgiving.

On around the lake marched Cardinal Bonzano, bearing the consecrated Host, a man no longer young, and followed by men no longer young, but moving with firm step. Cardinal Bonzano was sheltered from the storm by his canopy, the others had no protection whatever. It is a three mile journey around the lake, and when the cardinals marched back up the chapel steps some of them looked weary.

The sun had dried their robes to some extent in the final stages of the march, and they were smiling at the spectators in front of the chapel, where magnificent silken banners and regal trappings still hung limp and dispirited from the storm.

Standing before the great altar reared in front of the chapel, Cardinal Bonzano swung the ostensorium, or vessel containing the consecrated Host, three times to his left, three times to his right and three times to his front in the sign of the cross, and again nearly a million people knelt in devotion.

Thus concluded the greatest spectacle of the mighty revival meeting of the Catholic church that has been in progress in Chicago since last Sunday and which has been a succession of amazing spectacles, most of them the tremendous gatherings of the followers of the church that reached the highest peak in the crowd here today.

The estimates as to the number of the crowd today vary, but the most careful tabulation possible places it at over 800,000, probably the largest crowd ever assembled at a religious meeting in the history of the world.

For a time the crush caused some criticism of the selection of the meeting place, but it is perhaps quite fortunate that the storm didn't strike during one of those gigantic gatherings in Soldier's Field. It was one of those panic striking storms, and yet the people kept their morale very well today.

The women laughed at first at the rain, but the hail sent them scurrying. They packed into the chapel and the other buildings on the university grounds. Most of the nuns remained seated out in the open, their heads bowed patiently to the storm, their lips moving as if in prayer that the storm might cease.

Nearly everybody got more or less wet, but 10 minutes later the storm was forgotten as the spectators watched eagerly for the Cardinals. Then at the conclusion of the ceremonies they struggled to get back to Chicago. Many people were still trying to get through to Mundelein, the little town named for George Cardinal Mundelein, and the meeting of the Congress, when the storm broke and definitely halted them.

Before the procession of the Cardinals there was a procession of the laity around the lake, led by a big squad of policemen and firemen from New York. In this procession were the different foreign units, German, Slovak, Slovenian, Syrian, Croatian, Belgian, Hungarian, Polish, Bohemian, French, Italian, Chinese and others, with High School bands, and floats, a number of American Indians marched in the procession. The process on escaped the storm. The Cardinals and archbishops went to luncheon and a six to after the mass, in the morning and it was this delay in preparing for the ordeal of their march that cost them a wetting.

They started from the altar of the chapel about 2 o'clock, marching through a double file of Knights of Columbus with drawn swords. Altar boys in white surplices and bearing silken standards marched at the head of the procession and behind them came six thrusters swinging incense boats.

Then came a priest ringing a bell to signify the passing of the host, and the spectators forming a deep lane all the way around the lake, knelt devoutly as this bell sounded. Cardinal Bonzano, under his gold canopy, bearing the ostensorium, followed his eyes glowing behind his spectacles, his step measured, slow Bonzano was a magnificent looking man in his robes of office.

The band from St. Mary's University was stationed on the terrace in front of the altar and played as the cardinals marched down the steps of the chapel and throughout the journey, even while the rain and hail was falling, the chimes in the chapel tower kept ringing.

They had a sort of caisson arrangement, a three-wheeled vehicle, wrapped in yellow and white, which was intended to carry the ostensorium, to relieve Cardinal Bonzano of the burden in the event it proved too heavy but he came back to the chapel bearing the vessel in his two hands.

There was one final dramatic touch as he swung the ostensorium bestowing the benediction. From far off came a last long growl of thunder, and at a moment when the sun was shining brightly.
